PROGRAM AGENDA

SPSP 2023 Annual Convention

Event Schedule

Fri, Feb 10, 2023

9:30 AM

Social Media: Friend or Foe (Virtual)

⌚ 9:30 AM - 12:00 PM, Feb 10

*Professional Development Worksho...

This session is a debate on the influence of social media, and whether it has yielded tangible benefits or exacerbated human behavior, and who is responsible for issues that have arisen since its advent. After participants on opposing sides deliver arguments, attendees will discuss ideas and examine steps that personality and social psychologists can take to study social media's overall impact.

Being Multicultural Academics: Challenges and Opportunities of International Academic Careers (Virtual)

⌚ 11:00 AM - 12:00 PM, Feb 13

*Professional Development Sessio...

This session will bring together speakers in personality and social psychology with international academic experiences. These speakers represent diverse international paths in terms of their nationality, training, and career. They will share why and how they took these paths, and discuss the challenges and opportunities they face in navigating through academic communities in multiple countries.

Best Practices in Inclusive Gender Measurement: A Round Table Discussion (Virtual)

🕒 9:30 AM - 12:00 PM, Feb 15

*Professional Development Worksho...

This collaborative discussion will address current issues, insights, and future directions for inclusive gender measurement in global sentiment research. We will cover (1) experiences with gender measurement, (2) views on contemporary measurement practices, and (3) ideas on moving toward more inclusive measurement practices leveraging insights from the presenters' and attendees' backgrounds.

Getting Started with Registered Reports (Virtual)

🕒 1:00 PM - 3:30 PM, Feb 16

*Professional Development Worksho...

Registered reports are a new type of publication with a two stage review process designed to reduce publication bias. They are becoming increasingly common in social and personality psychology, but the workflow for these projects is different than what most are familiar with. In this workshop we discuss what a registered report is, how and where to submit, how to integrate trainees, and much more!

Analyzing Attitudes Networks (Virtual)

🕒 9:00 AM - 12:00 PM, Feb 17

*Professional Development Worksho...

Belief network analysis is a blooming methodology for studying belief systems as complex networks. The ResIN method combines this approach with latent space methodology. In this workshop, we will explain in detail ResIN: its working principles, when it is most suited, and how to use it. We will also provide case studies showing how we can produce information about influence and behavior.

Creating a Welcoming and Inclusive Experience at the Convention

1:00 PM - 1:45 PM, Feb 17

*Professional Development Sessio...

Meet our convention ombudsperson, Kathy Canul during this pre-event session. Participants will learn how an Ombuds can be of service when experiencing interpersonal challenges at the Convention. Additionally, we will identify ways in which respectful behavior, good communication, and inclusive practices can help facilitate a sense of belonging for Convention attendees.

Decolonizing Our Professional Development: Exploring the Westernization of Mindfulness (Virtual)

9:00 AM - 10:00 AM, Feb 20

*Professional Development Sessio...

Utilizing the theoretical framework of coloniality as modernity, we examine the processes of colonization and decolonization of Westernized mindfulness practices. Our objective is to provide actionable ways to re-center collective healing, interconnectedness, and social justice to decolonize the counseling profession. This program will feature an optional meditation and reflection exercise.

Legitimizing economic inequality across the globe: Exploring antecedents and consequences

Legitimizing Economic Inequality across the Globe: Exploring Antecedents and Consequences

8:00 AM - 8:00 AM, Feb 21

Politics

Intergroup Relations

*Symposia (On-Demand)

Global economic inequality is an ever-present issue and has drastically increased over the past forty years. Four speakers present research analyzing antecedents and consequences of legitimizing economic inequality, with a particular focus on its political outcomes. Talks examine samples drawn from diverse cultural backgrounds throughout the world (Latin America, Europe, Asia, Africa, Oceania).

SpeakersSalvador Vargas Salfate

PhD Student
University of Illinois at Urbana Champaign

Chadley Stern

Associate Professor
Univ. of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign

4 Subsessions

- Is Intra- and inter-class contact associated with legitimation of inequality?

8:00 AM - 8:00 AM, Feb 21

- Ideological and intergroup predictors of redistribution attitudes

8:00 AM - 8:00 AM, Feb 21

Weight Stigma in Healthcare: Perspectives from Medical Students, Physicians, and Patients

8:00 AM - 8:00 AM, Feb 21

Applied Social Psychology

Physical Health

*Symposia (On-Demand)

Weight stigma is rampant in healthcare. These presentations explore weight stigma in healthcare from its nascency in medical school to weight stigma in practice with patients. We end with a potential solution in the form of an intervention to reduce weight stigma in healthcare, ultimately creating a more inclusive and equitable healthcare system for diverse body shapes and sizes.

SpeakerMary Himmelstein

Assistant Professor

Embracing Complexity: Climate Change is Generative for Psychological Theory

8:00 AM - 8:00 AM, Feb 21

Motivation/Goals

Applied Social Psychology

*Symposia (On-Demand)

Psychology informs our response to climate change—but how might the rich context of climate change inform social psychological theory? We showcase novel theoretical insights on the psychology of narratives and challenges to the status quo; causal attribution and motivation; the influence of political elites and partisan norms; and how social isolation and exclusion shape the belief-behavior link.

Speakers

Drivers of Intergroup Contact and Friendship: Who, When, and How

⌚ 8:00 AM - 8:00 AM, Feb 21

*Symposia (On-Demand) Diversity Intergroup Relations

The benefits of intergroup friendship are well-documented, but less is known about its antecedents. Four talks examine the individual and situational drivers of intergroup contact and friendship across racial, political, and religious divides, as well as potential underlying moderators and mechanisms. Together, these talks shed light on the processes underlying connections across social divides.

The speakers will hold a synchronous talk and Q&A session on 2/24 Friday from 9am to 10:30am Eastern Time. You may join this session using the zoom link below:

Language forms attitudes: New perspectives on the in-out effect

⌚ 8:00 AM - 8:00 AM, Feb 21

Applied Social Psychology Social Cognition *Symposia (On-Demand)

In the articulatory in-out effect people prefer words with consonant articulation spots moving from the front of the mouth to the back (e.g., BOKI, inward) over words with the reversed order (e.g., KOB I, outward). This effect is extensively researched across several fields of psychology. This symposium presents the newest advancements in the exploration of its generalizability and working mechanisms.

Speaker

Sascha Topolinski
Full Professor
University of Cologne

4 Subsessions

- The articulatory in-out effect – robust and replicable, but also inexplicable?
⌚ 8:00 AM - 8:00 AM, Feb 21
- Exploring the role of the in-out effect in global branding among non-WEIRD consumers
⌚ 8:00 AM - 8:00 AM, Feb 21

Psychological drivers of misinformation and misperception

⌚ 8:00 AM - 8:00 AM, Feb 21

*Symposia (On-Demand) Attitudes/Persuasion Motivation/Goals

We have increasingly sophisticated ways of acquiring and communicating knowledge, but at the same time, efforts to communicate this knowledge often encounter resistance. The aim of the symposium is to understand and characterize the role of drivers such as trust, conformity, ideology and information complexity in motivated reasoning and knowledge resistance.

Scholarly Sexism: Gender Bias Toward Women in Academic Roles

⌚ 8:00 AM - 8:00 AM, Feb 21

Gender Stereotyping/Prejudice Symposia (On-Demand)

Women experience persisting gender inequality in nearly all the academic roles they occupy. To create a more equitable academic climate, we must shed light on these experiences and their implications. In this symposium, four talks highlight novel research exploring the impacts and experiences of sexism in a variety of academic positions and suggest ways to challenge the identified gender bias.

Protecting Participants' Privacy in the Age of Open Data (Virtual)

⌚ 1:00 PM - 3:30 PM, Feb 21

Professional Development Worksho...

Though crucial to psychologists, when released publicly, demographic information can jeopardize participants' anonymity and expose sensitive information about them. Why? Because even a few demographic attributes can uniquely identify an individual. Attendees will learn about the risk of re-identification and gain hands-on experience with open-access software to boost the privacy of open datasets.

🕒 7:30 AM - 7:00 PM, Feb 22

📍 Virtual

*Preconference (Vir...

This year's theme is "Diversifying Sustainability Psychology: Towards the inclusion of diverse populations, actors, and methodologies." Our field could have wide-reaching relevance given the urgency and ubiquity of the impacts of climate change and other environmental issues. Nevertheless, the existing research has been developed with predominantly samples and researchers in Western, developed societies as well as with a strong focus on individual-level processes. This year's preconference showcases cutting-edge research that extends the predominant scope in sustainability psychology. We will place the spotlight on work that includes diverse populations (both participants- and researchers-wise) and that examines multiple levels of actors (e.g., nations and corporations), and that employs innovative methodologies (e.g., computational methods). Our preconference is open to participants from all levels and professional backgrounds and will include a keynote address, invited speaker sessions, blitzes, poster sessions, and a networking event.

Answering the question, “who am I?” is the project of our lives. Authenticity describes the process by which people attempt to answer that fundamental question and verify the answer with others. As a psychological experience, authenticity is crucial for happiness, self-esteem, and well-being. Despite its importance, we know surprisingly little about what causes authenticity and what defines its contours. Is everyone allowed equal access to authenticity? Is authenticity always moral? What is “true” about authenticity—and what is not? What predicts whether someone will be seen as authentic by others?

Psychology of Religion and Spirituality

🕒 8:25 AM - 5:30 PM, Feb 22

📍 Virtual

Preconference (Vir...

This preconference explores social psychological research on religion and spirituality to understand when, why, and how religion/spirituality affects cognitive, emotional, and behavioral processes. Integrating empirically-based cutting-edge research with interdisciplinary approaches, this preconference showcases state-of-the-field theory, methods, and research that advances a rich and diverse scientific study of religion and spirituality. This year, our focus is to highlight the diversity of scientific approaches to and traditions within the psychology of religion and spirituality. As religions continues to be a central part of social life across cultures, this preconference showcases the very best cutting-edge research across a wide range of human phenomena intersecting with religion and spirituality. Once again, to encourage field-building, we anticipate fully funding graduate student registration fees with support from The John Templeton Foundation.

📍 Virtual

*Preconference (Vir...

Establishing shared realities is basic to human nature. To verify what is true about the world and make sense of experiences, people turn to each other. In today's world, questions about how people jointly discern what is truly real have become increasingly ubiquitous. How do people influence each other's perceptions of reality? How do conversation partners establish shared meaning, and how do close partners contribute to meaning in life? How do people get "on the same wavelength"?

Existential Psychology

🕒 9:00 AM - 8:00 PM, Feb 22

📍 Virtual

*Preconference (Vir...

The science of existential psychology is focused on core issues of “being” and “becoming” in human nature and social life—including such key existential concerns as: freedom, authenticity, and moral responsibility; awareness of mortality; culture, the self, and identity; isolation, uncertainty, and shared reality; and the quest for meaning and purpose in life. This year’s preconference will focus on freedom and authenticity. A special address will highlight philosophical perspectives on free will, authenticity, and moral responsibility, and explore how the science of existential psychology can advance our understanding of the topic. The keynote address will present an overview of the growing body of research on authenticity. Five other invited speakers will present research on: the “true self”; self-determined experiences; non-conscious processing and the will; motivated free will beliefs; and belief in free will and moral responsibility. Data blitz and poster presentations will cover a broad range of existential psychology topics.

The Psychology of Extremism

🕒 9:00 AM - 4:45 PM, Feb 22

📍 Virtual

Preconference (Vir...

This pre-conference will bring together researchers that study various forms of extreme behavior (such as addictions, violent and political extremism, extreme diets, extreme sports, extreme love, extreme humanism or extreme groups) in order to explore the psychological and biological commonalities they share. The line-up includes ten invited speakers who will give talks about extremism from different perspectives, as well as a data blitz and poster sessions.

The conference will be related to the forthcoming handbook on this topic titled 'The Psychology of Extremism: A Motivational Perspective' that explores the commonalities that various types of extremism share. The idea of the pre-conference is to bring together researchers from various areas of study and create a platform to exchange thoughts and ideas that can help define the domain of extreme behavior and establish it as a fruitful area of study across levels and disciplines.

*Preconference (Vir...

The Beyond Academia preconference is a forum for sharing research that addresses real world problems and processes, as well as discussing meta-issues related to the application of social and personality psychology. This preconference brings together individuals with established careers, those currently pursuing, those interested in pursuing, and those otherwise contributing to social and personality psychology research and practice in applied, non-academic settings. The program will provide attendees opportunities to consider the interplay between basic and applied research, and the many ways one can be involved in this enterprise.

Preconference (Vir...

The goal of this preconference is to bring together researchers who are interested in macro psychological processes occurring at the level of groups or crowds. Collective psychological processes are often the result of interactions between individuals whose mutual influence leads to the emergence of outcomes that cannot be captured by the analysis of individuals as separate units. Research in the growing field of collective psychology integrates insights from psychology, network science, and complexity theory, and experiments in this domain are often aided by computational simulations designed to capture the emerging properties of human interaction. We hope to use this forum to unite researchers from a variety of subdomains that fall under collective psychology, including collective intelligence, collective decision making (wisdom of the crowd), collective memory, and collective affect.

*Preconference (In-P...

For 20 years, the Justice & Morality preconference has brought top scholars in the field to share their most recent findings and facilitate interdisciplinary dialogue. It presents a unique opportunity to connect two subareas that are thematically related, and yet typically studied independently. This year we will hear cutting-edge research covering a variety of "traditional" and "new" topics in justice and morality from researchers all around the world.

Continental breakfast, am/pm beverages and a boxed lunch will be provided.

Preconference (In-P...

The Gender Preconference brings together emerging and classic approaches to the social psychology of gender. Presentation formats include a keynote talk, symposia, data blitzes, and posters. Invited speakers will include early career rising stars through established scholars. This year’s symposia will focus on the psychology of feminism and feminist attitudes and sexual objectification among singly and multiply marginalized targets. Data blitz sessions will feature 5-minute talks that highlight innovative work on “hot topics” of interest. The program will also include a poster session that offers additional opportunities for presenters to share their gender research in a relaxed atmosphere. To celebrate and center the scholarship of rising gender scholars, we will again have a poster award session for student posters. We invite applications for data blitz talks and posters from students and academics at all stages of their careers.

Continental breakfast, am/pm beverages and a boxed lunch will be provided.

Group Processes and Intergroup Relations

🕒 8:00 AM - 4:30 PM, Feb 23

📍 Marriott: A706, Atrium Level- LL1

Preconference (In-P...

As nations attempt to make sense of the causes and consequences of mass shootings, war, restricted rights, poverty, rising populism and nationalism, and systemic biases, the importance of diverse scholarship on both large-scale movements and small teams is clear. The Group Processes and Intergroup Relations Pre-Conference takes a diverse approach to understanding both the destructive and the rejuvenating power of human groups. Broadly, this program highlights diverse scholarship which focuses on societal and organizational issues, including collective violence and extremism, strategies for disrupting and reinventing oppressive systems, stimulating creative work teams, and promoting groups for mental health and well-being.

Continental breakfast, am/pm beverages and a boxed lunch will be provided.

Teaching of Personality and Social Psychology

- 🕒 8:00 AM - 4:35 PM, Feb 23
📍 Hyatt: Baker, Atlanta Conference Center- LL3

*Preconference (In-P...

Most SPSP members have or will have teaching-related responsibilities in social psychology or related specialties. The STP Teaching Preconference focuses on these responsibilities and ways to improve teaching based on best practices and findings from SoTL research. The Preconference provides programming supporting teaching at all levels (graduate students to senior faculty), emphasizes novel, empirically-supported techniques and content for teaching, provides opportunities for teachers to share effective practices, and addresses a wide variety of teaching issues and contexts. The goal of this preconference is for attendees to leave with specific, teaching-related ideas that can be implemented upon attendees' return from the preconference. This preconference is appropriate for those at every professional level, from novice instructors who might be building courses for the first time to veteran faculty who continue to update courses. This preconference has been held 20 consecutive years at SPSP, and attendees reliably consider it valuable and enjoyable.

Continental breakfast, am/pm beverages and a boxed lunch will be provided.

Happiness and Well-Being

🕒 8:00 AM - 3:45 PM, Feb 23

📍 Hyatt: Hanover DE, Exhibit Level - LL2

Preconference (In-P...

The 10th Annual Happiness and Well-Being Preconference will continue its successful tradition of showcasing cutting-edge work in the science of well-being across a variety of perspectives. There will be experts in well-being science invited to share their latest work and discuss future directions for the field. Ample time will be allocated for audience questions and discussions around the invited speakers' work and claims. Both graduate and undergraduate students will have the opportunity to feature their work in data blitzes and poster sessions. During lunchtime, attendees will have the opportunity to further connect with speakers at mentorship tables, where they can discuss well-being research, methodological approaches, and professional development issues. Invited talks, data blitzes, and poster sessions will contain novel theoretical contributions, new research methodologies, and cutting-edge applications. Please join us for another year of happiness and well-being at SPSP 2023.

Continental breakfast, am/pm beverages and a boxed lunch will be provided.

*Preconference (In-P...)

The SPSP Evolutionary Psychology (EP) Preconference—in its 21st year—provides a forum for discussing cutting-edge research examining how social psychological processes have been shaped by recurring physical and social challenges faced over human evolutionary history. Regularly among the top-attended preconferences, the EP Preconference attracts established researchers, new investigators, and graduate and undergraduate students from around the world. Invited speakers present full-length research talks; slots to present cutting-edge data blitzes and posters are competitive, featuring scholars across career levels. Presented research covers a broad range of topics, including: cooperation, health, morality, aggression, social cognition, mating, and personality. The EP Preconference fosters interdisciplinary collaboration between researchers from various domains of social, personality, cognitive, developmental psychology, and anthropology, and provides an optimal forum for introducing psychologists—from students to faculty—to the ways evolutionary theory can be used to cohere disparate findings, generate novel predictions, and ultimately enhance our understanding of psychology and behavior.

Continental breakfast, am/pm beverages and a boxed lunch will be provided.

Historical Psychology

🕒 8:00 AM - 5:30 PM, Feb 23

📍 Hyatt: Greenbriar, Atlanta Conference Center - LL3

Preconference (In-P...

Our psychology is shaped by our societies, and our societies are shaped by their histories. History serves as a kind of psychological fossil record, which opens up an exciting source of data from "dead minds". The Historical Psychology preconference brings together researchers to discuss cross-temporal variation in human psychology, ranging from conformity and values to stereotypes and emotion. We encourage presentations that use a diverse array of methods such as historical text analysis, cultural evolutionary modeling, survey-based assessment, agent-based modeling, etc. Sessions will be structured to allow for introduction of novel methods as well as discussion of presentations and new ideas in the new field of historical psychology. In addition to full research presentations, this preconference will feature a panel session.

Continental breakfast, am/pm beverages and a boxed lunch will be provided.

Bringing Intragroup Processes to Social Psychology

🕒 8:00 AM - 4:45 PM, Feb 23

📍 Hyatt: Inman, Atlanta Conference Center - LL3

Preconference (In-P...

The origins of social psychology can be traced back to early studies of intragroup processes by Lewin and others. In recent years, however, social psychologists have drifted away from the 'social' roots from which our field originated. In this unique preconference, we seek to re-invigorate research interest in the study of social interactions within groups. We will feature an array of speakers from social psychology as well as management and other disciplines (e.g., computer sciences) who are doing cutting edge work on intragroup processes, and we will conclude with a discussion on why social psychologists should be studying intragroup processes and why the area of intragroup processes would benefit from going back to its psychological roots.

Continental breakfast, am/pm beverages and a boxed lunch will be provided.

Preconference (In-P...

The theme of the tenth annual SPSP Sexuality Preconference, is “Sex Down South.” The Southeastern United States has among the highest rates of sexual and reproductive health disparities in the nation, and access to comprehensive, inclusive sex education is limited and under attack (e.g., Florida’s “Don’t Say Gay” law). Our Preconference will draw together a diverse group of scholars to explore research and policy relevant to reducing these disparities and increasing access to medically accurate, culturally sensitive sex education in the South and beyond. Attendees are invited to submit proposals for individual talks, data blitzes, and posters. Submissions are welcome from scholars at all levels and in any area of sex research. Individual talks are encouraged to match the conference theme, while data blitzes and poster presentations are welcome to focus on any sex research topic.

Continental breakfast, am/pm beverages and a boxed lunch will be provided.

Close Relationships

🕒 8:00 AM - 4:30 PM, Feb 23

📍 Marriott: Atrium A

Preconference (In-P...

The Close Relationships Preconference has been a part of SPSP for nearly 20 years. This preconference brings together cutting-edge research and theory in relationship science across social and personality psychology. The preconference features award addresses, talks and data blitz presentations of new research, themed lunch tables, and a special session designed to generate discussion. This year's lineup will include a series of dynamic speakers (with time for discussion), including talks by the winner of the Caryl E. Rusbult Early Career Award and the Graduate Student Research Paper Award. Our interactive special session will include 3-4 presenters followed by a moderated discussion. The data blitz will allow 12 researchers at any stage (often young investigators) to present their 'hottest' new findings in 3 minutes. The themed lunch tables cover an array of professional development, theoretical, and methodological topics and facilitate forming new connections and collaborations with relationship science colleagues.

Continental breakfast, am/pm beverages and a boxed lunch will be provided.

Conflict and Conflict Resolution

🕒 8:00 AM - 3:45 PM, Feb 23

📍 Hyatt: Spring, Atlanta Conference Center - LL3

Preconference (In-P...

Conflict is ubiquitous across time and place and has important consequences for everyone involved. This preconference will bring together eminent and rising scholars to share recent theory and findings in the area of conflict and conflict resolution. We invite scholars studying the precursors, nature, and consequences of interpersonal, organizational, and intergroup conflict, as well as strategies for managing past and ongoing conflict in more constructive versus destructive ways. We also encourage presentations addressing multiple goals of conflict resolution, such as justice, equity, performance, relationship functioning, personal wellbeing, and the reduction of prejudice and discrimination. Sessions will be structured to permit constructive discussion of research, future directions, and practical implications for interventions. In addition to full research talks, this preconference will feature a data-blitz session. We look forward to seeing you there!

Continental breakfast, am/pm beverages and a boxed lunch will be provided.

*Preconference (In-P...

The Health Pre-conference is a “hub” for SPSP attendees working across a diverse array of areas connecting social/personality processes to health. Indeed, many current topics in social/personality psychology have links to health and wellbeing, including intergroup relations, close relationships, self and identity, emotion, motivation, and, of course, social interventions. The pandemic highlighted critical connections between social/personality processes and health, and has brought renewed attention to the broader structural and systemic determinants of health disparities. Accordingly, this pre-conference would be a vital component of SPSP 2023 programming, particularly following the 2022 Health Disparities SPF.

Continental breakfast, am/pm beverages and a boxed lunch will be provided.

Psychology of Language

🕒 8:00 AM - 4:35 PM, Feb 23

📍 Marriott: A705

Preconference (In-P...

Language is involved in virtually all aspects of everyday life reflecting people's thoughts, feelings, and behaviors. The psychological analysis of language is a cornerstone of psychology enabling the study of complex psychological processes that have been historically difficult to study in the real world. Additionally, as government and private enterprises incorporate social psychology research, language analysis provides a way to bridge the gap between social/personality psychology and data scientists. This preconference will feature cutting-edge research talks from leading researchers who utilize a diverse set of language analyses to address some of the most important matters in today's society: diversity, equity, and inclusion, health, politics, and public policy. The program will include collaborative sessions that address the future directions of language analyses. Attendees will have the opportunity to join discussions on how researchers can further utilize language analyses to address social issues and long-standing issues in social and personality psychology.

Continental breakfast, am/pm beverages and a boxed lunch will be provided.

Self & Identity

🕒 8:00 AM - 4:30 PM, Feb 23

📍 Hyatt: Hanover AB, Exhibit Level - LL2

*Preconference (In-P...

The Self and Identity Preconference provides a forum for investigating the complexities of the individual. This year's preconference has a special focus on "The Social Self," highlighting how our self-views influence our relationships and interactions with others, and are influenced by them in turn. The way we think of ourselves affects our willingness to reach out to others – to connect with them and learn from them. Interacting with others, in turn, can shape the way we view ourselves and our various identities. The preconference will feature work of eminent and emerging scholars in these areas, as well as addresses from Early Career and Lifetime Career Award winners from the International Society for Self and Identity. The preconference will also feature a poster session, data blitz, and a mentoring/networking lunch

Continental breakfast, am/pm beverages and a boxed lunch will be provided.

*Preconference (In-P...

The Personality Science Preconference showcases new directions in personality and individual differences research across diverse topics, methodologies, and samples. We resume our in-person preconferencing with an “unconference” approach: Programming will include traditional symposia, an early career data blitz, hack-a-thons, and ample opportunities for open discussion, encouraging active involvement by all attendees. Given that personality psychology is the study of similarities and differences in individuals’ experiences, we will feature programming that intersects with social, cultural, clinical, health, biological, organizational, and community psychology and beyond. Join us!

Continental breakfast, am/pm beverages and a boxed lunch will be provided.

Emotion

🕒 8:00 AM - 4:00 PM, Feb 23

📍 Hyatt: Centennial 3, Ballroom Level - LL1

Preconference (In-P...

The SPSP Emotion Preconference is for psychologists interested in affective science and has been held every year since 2006. We bring together Social and Personality psychologists attending SPSP who are broadly interested in emotion and affective science. The preconference is an opportunity to showcase cutting-edge work that is of relevance for our core attendees and to provide a context for focused scholarly exchange. The program will consist of a series of talks by invited distinguished speakers. The program will also feature shorter submitted talks and a poster session, which provide opportunities for trainees and early investigators to showcase their work.

Continental breakfast, am/pm beverages and a boxed lunch will be provided.

Political Psychology

🕒 8:00 AM - 4:30 PM, Feb 23

📍 Marriott: A601

*Preconference (In-P...

The political psychology pre-conference brings together researchers to discuss topics in political cognition, ideology, and behavior. The aims of the pre-conference are to facilitate the dissemination of cutting-edge research in political psychology, honor the leaders of the field, and promote the next generation of political psychologists. Back by popular demand, this year's pre-conference will again feature themed "mini-symposia," covering a diverse range of topics. Each mini-symposia will include an extended discussion session with the audience. In addition to invited faculty speakers, we host a graduate student talk, data blitz, and poster sessions. Graduate students, post-doctoral scholars, and early career (i.e., pre-tenure) scholars are invited to submit proposals for data blitz and poster presentations.

Continental breakfast, am/pm beverages and a boxed lunch will be provided.

Origins of the Social Mind

🕒 8:00 AM - 4:30 PM, Feb 23

📍 Hyatt: Dunwoody, Atlanta Conference Center - LL3

Preconference (In-P...

What are the origins of the social mind? Addressing this question requires integrating insights and methodology from developmental psychology (how does the social mind change over developmental time?), comparative cognition (which aspects of the social mind are shared with other species vs. unique to humans?) and cross-cultural work (what is the scope and scale of variation in the social mind?). Together, research from these disciplines has shed important light on the psychological mechanisms that shape and constrain social reasoning and behavior among humans and other species. Yet, while research within each of these sub-disciplines has made distinct contributions to social psychology, it is rare for such theoretical and methodological diversity to be represented in one place. In this uniquely innovative and interdisciplinary pre-conference, we bring developmental, comparative and cross-cultural perspectives together to showcase research investigating key questions about the foundations of social thought and behavior.

Continental breakfast, am/pm beverages and a boxed lunch will be provided.

Preconference (In-P...

Digital technologies are deeply embedded in our everyday lives. We engage with a diverse set of devices and platforms to communicate, navigate our environment, and seek information or entertainment. As a result, social scientists are at the forefront of an urgent undertaking: to understand the psychological antecedents and consequences of digital technologies such as smartphones and social media. In this preconference, researchers from psychology, communication, and computer science share their work and ideas for this area of research. The theme for the seventh meeting will focus in particular on social and mobile media, illuminating how they represent both a substantive domain of study and a methodological opportunity for studying human behavior. The invited symposia and panel will explore a wide range of related topics, including individual differences, user motivations, contextual factors, digital disparities, and well-being. A data blitz and poster session will feature the work of early career researchers.

Continental breakfast, am/pm beverages and a boxed lunch will be provided.

Misinformation & Belief Science

- 🕒 8:00 AM - 4:15 PM, Feb 23
- 📍 Hyatt: Fairlie, Atlanta Conference Center - LL3

*Preconference (In-P...

The Misinformation & Belief Science preconference will bring together scholars and practitioners who work on understanding and tackling misinformation in society from multiple subdisciplines. The presenters will focus on novel theoretical, methodological, and empirical insights into the belief, sharing, and spread of misinformation, and associated behavioral changes. It will also investigate how people come to believe new information (both true and false) and how those beliefs can be changed or altered, and the connection (or lack thereof) between beliefs and behaviors. There will be a focus on why people are susceptible to misinformation, the development and evaluation of counter-misinformation interventions that may correct or prevent false beliefs, and the cross-cultural replicability of the findings. The day will include a diverse series of talks by misinformation scholars, a skill-sharing session, blitz talks from Early Career Researchers, and a poster session, along with ample time for discussion and meeting new colleagues.

Continental breakfast, am/pm beverages and a boxed lunch will be provided.

Intervention Science: Harnessing Psychology to Address Real-World Social Problems

🕒 8:00 AM - 4:30 PM, Feb 23

📍 Marriott: Atrium BC

*Preconference (In-P...

The Intervention Science preconference brings together researchers interested in turning psychology outward to understand and address pressing societal issues. In 2023, we will showcase intervention research using diverse theoretical and methodological approaches to tackle social problems, including a discussion on ways to translate basic research into scalable interventions that have real-world impact. We also invite abstract submissions to present in our poster session (open to all attendees) and/or to give an early career data blitz (open to graduate students and recent PhDs).

Continental breakfast, am/pm beverages and a boxed lunch will be provided.

Motivation Science

- 🕒 8:30 AM - 3:30 PM, Feb 23
- 📍 Marriott: A701, Atrium Level- LL1

*Preconference (In-P...

This preconference will feature cutting-edge research in motivation science and its applications. The aim is to showcase the important work being done on motivation, goal pursuit, and self-regulation - and to provide networking, mentoring, and presentation opportunities to early-career scholars. The line-up includes invited speakers as well as symposium speakers, who will give talks about motivation from different social psychological perspectives, on theoretical as well as applied topics. Early career researchers will have the opportunity to submit symposium talks as well as posters. A panel of motivation scholars will discuss unresolved questions in motivation science, including unexplored topics and underlying 'big questions' in the field

Continental breakfast, am/pm beverages and a boxed lunch will be provided.

Calling all PUI Mentors/Mentees - the annual convention is the perfect opportunity to connect with your mentor/mentee. Confirm with your partner in advance of the meeting the date/time you want to connect. We recommend the Welcome Reception on Thursday, February 23 from 5:30 pm-6:30 pm. There will be two tables designated for PUI Mentoring (look for the tabletop signs near exhibit booth 114). If this time does not work for you, feel free to find another time during the convention to connect. For those not attending in person, you can connect with your partner through the Whova app to meet virtually.

Support Voter Education with VoteRiders and SPSP

🕒 5:30 PM - 6:30 PM, Feb 23

📍 Hyatt: Grand Hall, Exhibit Level - LL2

SPSP is partnering with VoteRiders, a nonpartisan organization focused on voter ID education and assistance. Please join VoteRiders in our non-partisan letter-writing campaign targeting over 157,000 registered voters without an ID on file with the Secretary of State's office. In-person and virtual attendees will have the opportunity to write letters to voters across the state of Georgia. Stop by the VoteRiders booth in the Grand Hall on the Exhibit Level of the Hyatt Regency during the Annual Convention to learn how you can get involved.

*Professional Development Session ...

In a big data world of reproducible psychological science, small effects are ubiquitous. But when do they matter, how do we interpret them and what should researchers, journals and scientific communities do with them? In this interactive panel, five leading experts tackle these and other questions and try to sketch out a future vision for how we should assess, report, and interpret small effects.

Reducing Inequality and Fostering Inclusion with Field Interventions

🕒 8:00 AM - 9:00 AM, Feb 24

Symposia (In-Pe...

Four talks showcase how researchers design scalable interventions to reduce inequality and foster inclusion in real-world contexts. From higher education to S&P 100 company, from intergroup conflicts to social media content moderation, we report a wide range of interventions that have changed people's attitude, emotions, behaviors, and even careers. The field of moral psychology strives to understand how all humans make decisions about right and wrong, but studies of morality have typically focused on a small and WEIRD fraction of the global human population. Here, we present four research programs showing how cross-cultural research can upend fundamental assumptions about the moral mind and resolve ongoing debates in moral psychology.

Social Cognition

Stereotyping/Prejudice

*Symposia (In-Person)

People can predict their implicit biases with remarkable accuracy, suggesting that — contrary to the classic definition — they might be introspectively aware of them. We bring together perspectives from psychology and philosophy to grapple with the possibility of implicit bias awareness and its consequences for social cognitive theory and the alleviation of group-based inequality.

Intergroup Relations

*Symposia (In-Person)

Relations between minority groups play a complex and dynamic role in promoting social justice and systemic change. The current talks explore the role of status as well as the effects of framing and identity on intraminority emotions, stereotypes, perceptions, and allyship. This research delineates some factors that may support and hinder intraminority coalitions.

*Symposia (In-Person)

Using data from Twitter, experiments, and interventions, speakers discuss how social media and morality can fuel or fix political divides. Polarization rises when tweets imply opponents lack basic moral sense, use negatively moral rhetoric, or advocate ignoring opponents' views, but diminishes when tweets reveal opponents' moral sensibilities, or when users unfollow hyper-partisan accounts.

Presidential Plenary: How Norms Change

🕒 11:00 AM - 12:15 PM, Feb 24

📍 Hyatt: Centennial 2, Ballroom Level - LL1

Presidential Plen...

Norms change both spontaneously and through concerted efforts to shift social perceptions about what actions and outcomes are legitimate. This plenary will cover the impact of changes in social norms on groups’ ability to create positive futures in the United States, West Africa, and Europe as well as the processes underlying these changes.

Ask a search committee chair

🕒 2:00 PM - 3:00 PM, Feb 24

📍 Marriott: Atrium BC, Atrium Level

*Professional Development Session ...

This panel includes five recent chairs of search committees for tenure-track hires from a diverse set of American colleges/universities. Panelists will describe common red flags and positive indicators for applicants, and hold a Q&A session on how to make application materials stand out, navigate each stage of the search, communicate about potentially thorny issues, and highlight your fit.

Using Tableau for Data Visualization in the Psychological Sciences

🕒 2:00 PM - 3:00 PM, Feb 24

📍 Marriott: A602, Atrium Level

Professional Development Session ...

This professional development session focuses on the use of data visualization to properly communicate information and persuade public audiences. We will discuss best practices in data visualization and potential pitfalls. We will also conduct hands-on demonstrations of Tableau, a powerful software used for data visualization and dashboards but rarely taught in psychology programs.

With Great Power Comes Responsibility: A guide to student mentorship

🕒 2:00 PM - 3:00 PM, Feb 24

📍 Marriott: A601, Atrium Level

Professional Development Session ...

The unfortunate reality is that the majority of graduate students are underpaid, overworked, and under-resourced. The best thing that a mentor can do is wield their power to make their students' journeys smooth. In this workshop, attendees will learn about common hurdles students face, assess their own mentoring style, and obtain a toolbox of strategies to take their mentorship to the next level.

*Symposia (In-Person)

Because negative attributes are more diverse than positive attributes, individuals' and groups' shared attributes tend to be positive, while their distinct, unique attributes tend to be negative. This asymmetry has several consequences for the formation of interpersonal attraction, the formation of evaluative biases in the perception of individuals and groups, and the formation of stereotypes.

Gender

*Symposia (In-Person)

This featured symposium brings together four leading scholars in the science of gender disparities from diverse disciplines—psychology, organizational behavior, economics, and public policy—to consider the latest knowledge on the origins and solutions for advancing equality in organizations and society. What do we know from the research to date on gender gaps in various traits and outcomes relevant to power, status, and labor markets? What has led to these different forms of gender gap and allows them to persist? What practices, behavioral designs, or structural changes present the most promising solutions for eliminating gender gaps? What role can we, as psychologists, play in the ongoing quest to improve gender equality?

*Professional Development Sessio...

Open education is a philosophy about the way that educators create, reconstruct, and share knowledge. Specific aspects of open education, such as open science, open textbooks, and open teaching practices are increasingly popular in higher education. For example, in the last decade, faculty in British Columbia have saved students about 23 million US Dollars in textbook fees. Even so, a number of concerns and skepticism serve as obstacles to more widespread adoption of open education; especially regarding open resources. In this presentation, two open education advocates will describe their experiences with open education as it relates to psychology. First, Farhad Dastur, former Associate Dean and Department Head at Kwantlen Polytechnic University (Canada) will discuss systemic issues related to openness. These include the culture of the psychology department and evaluations of the quality of open resources. Farhad will provide practical suggestions for opening a department. Next, Robert Biswas-Diener, the editor of Noba, will describe his experiences creating open resources, highlighting both the benefits and problems of doing so. He will also describe the wide range of reactions he has received from the hundreds of instructors who have adopted Noba resources. After these two short presentations, Farhad and Robert will engage in a brief discussion of open and then take questions from the audience.

*Symposia (In-Person)

The hypothesis that dehumanization facilitates harm holds intuitive appeal, but recent critiques raise serious questions about the divergent and predictive validity of dehumanization. Using methodologies ranging from neuroscience to experimental philosophy, four speakers refine the conceptualization of dehumanization, differentiate it from prejudice, and clarify its unique relationship with violence.

Applied Social Psychology Gender Symposia (In-Person)

Women's underrepresentation in leadership and STEM is a well-recognized problem. Recent theory suggests that “masculine defaults”—a subtle cultural bias—constrains women's career outcomes and contributes to the persistent gender gap in majority-men occupations (Cheryan & Markus, 2020). People think they can keep the peace by avoiding politics and they think they can bring change by engaging. Four talks suggest they may be wrong on both accounts. People who avoid political discussions are seen as inauthentic and deceptive, and people who engage overestimate how much they can change other people's minds. Groups/Intergroup Processes

Morality

*Symposia (In-Person)

How do people respond to group wrongs of the past and present? We investigate this by exploring the moral psychological conditions in which people blame present groups for the wrongdoings of their past, how historically advantaged groups manage their identity, and psychological factors that facilitate or hinder support towards compensatory or discriminatory policies towards the wronged groups.

*Symposia (In-Person)

System justification theory was proposed by Jost and Banaji (1994) to explain outgroup favoritism, particularly among disadvantaged groups. The theory's scope was expanded to account for a wider range of social and psychological outcomes. In this symposium we consider extensions and applications of SJT to attitudes about three important social issues: race, colonialism, and immigration.

Attitudes/Persuasion

Politics

The classic approach predicts threat causes conservatism. We complicate this narrative. Across different threats (police, terrorism, COVID-19), the current work shows threat effects are narrow, are mostly anger driven, can cause liberal shifts, and are moderated by the threatening context. There is not one threat effect. Instead, threat may not be as central to political attitudes as once thought.

Judgment/Decision-Making/Politics *Symposia (In-Person)

This panel presents novel research on why misinformation succeeds and how to mitigate it. We first show that people are sometimes unaware of the knowledge they have, and that lies are judged less unethical when they fit the facts. We then provide new insights into the mechanisms of inoculation against misinformation over time, and how it can reduce the sharing of group-disparaging posts.

Authors: Elizabeth Phelps; Yarrow Dunham; Aylin Caliskan

We feature three points of view, different from Banaji's own expertise that broke new ground. They ushered in the study of the brain, the child, and large language corpora to understand implicit bias. These collaborations achieved two goals: they improved understanding of the most fundamental aspects of the core concepts surrounding implicit social cognition and they simultaneously showed its applications to societal issues stemming from implicit bias in unexpected ways.

Black Americans are routinely exposed to cues that can undermine their sense of inclusion across various settings. This session demonstrates how several cues within organizational contexts (e.g., diversity structures and representation) impact Black Americans' sense of inclusion. Further, we identify how the nature of these processes can diverge due to intragroup variability among Black Americans.

These talks discuss new insights about how people's lay theories about ability – basic beliefs about its prevalence, antecedents, and malleability – drive workplace inequality and offer potential solutions. Four talks reveal that harnessing the link between lay theories and ability has the potential to address entrenched biases based on attractiveness, race, gender, and talent.

In this study, we examined participants endorsement of lay beliefs about why racial disparities in COVID-19 exist among Black and Latinx communities. Comparing means, we saw that personal responsibility beliefs were endorsed more when referring to the black community. This data provides insight into how beliefs about racial differences can influence lay-theories regarding disparities in COVID-19.

Constellation Program

Social Cognition

Stereotyping/Prejudice

*Symposia (In-Person)

The advent of big data has afforded a new lens into the interplay between psychology and large-scale contexts in society, including place, time, and demographics. With a diversity of data sources and phenomena, this symposium convenes four state-of-the-art approaches to mapping patterns of attitudes, beliefs, and social judgments across geographic, demographic, historical, and linguistic contexts.

Person Perception/Impression Formation

Social Cognition

*Symposia (In-Person)

While prior work has identified the degree to which judges agree in their person perceptions, we still need to better understand the factors that determine interjudge consensus or disagreement. Four talks examine the antecedents and implications of person perceptions in actual social interactions and relationships.

Self-Regulation

Personality Processes/Traits

*Symposia (In-Person)

This symposium presents findings from recent research on self-control, specifically highlighting the dynamic positive and negative effects and tradeoffs associated with self-control perceptions and efforts. The research examines both individual and interpersonal self-control contexts, and sheds new light on the historically beneficial, but perhaps nuanced, characteristic.

Culture

Social Cognition

*Symposia (In-Person)

How do social class cultures operate in everyday contexts? Our first two speakers demonstrate that lower social class is associated with enhanced memory to others' faces and minds. Our last two speakers show that social class shapes our experiences of relationship conflict, and that we can leverage prevailing theories of social class to attenuate class-based disparities in the workplace.

Introduction to Causal Inference using Causal Diagrams and Potential Outcomes

🕒 1:00 PM - 4:30 PM, Feb 25

📍 Hyatt: Hanover C, Exhibit Level - LL2

*Professional Development Workshop...

How can researchers draw defensible causal inferences using observational data? This workshop introduces causal diagrams and potential outcomes for addressing this question. I will discuss and demonstrate using causal diagrams to visualize and justify key causal assumptions, and using propensity scores to eliminate confounding. Attendees will learn how to strengthen causal inferences in practice.

Women leave STEM professions at higher rates than men and are still severely underrepresented in many prestigious STEM fields. Four talks in this symposium seek to better understand the persistence of STEM gender gaps. From lab micro-cultures to larger department changes, we present cutting-edge data on significant mechanisms keeping women from entering STEM and thriving as STEM professionals.

Historically, psychologists have been able to leverage their expertise and research in ways that provide commentary on important societal issues. Reflecting ongoing efforts to "give psychology away," four talks present some of the most cutting-edge research into psychological phenomena that have recently dominated public discourse. Specifically, four engaging speakers will present on perceptions on the legacy of racism, racial attitudes related to voter ID laws, the role of racist and sexist attitudes in shaping perceptions of abortion, and why people defend the gender/sex binary.

This symposium showcases longitudinal investigations of change in a broad range of social and personality processes, such as social isolation, loneliness, Big Five personality traits, and expectations about romantic relationships. Together, these studies assess change at different levels (i.e., population-level trends and individual trajectories) and timescales (i.e., months to years), and investigate predictors and outcomes of change.
